Disclaimer

Chase is only responsible for posting the statement credit to your account based on the data it receives from its third-party service provider. It is possible that a merchant may split your purchase into multiple transactions. In this case you may only receive your statement credit on the first transaction amount. If this occurs, please call the number on the back of your card. The statement credit will appear on your statement within 14 business days of Chase's receipt of this information.

If you purchase a subscription service, your card may be billed for automatic renewals at recurring periods without further notice from the merchant. This offer will not apply to such renewals once the offer expires or is fully used.
